

JUNIOR LEAGUE OF RHODE ISLAND

Erin Herzog, Community Service Council Director

Erin Herzog is pleased to serve as the 2017-2018 Community Service Council Director for the Junior League of Rhode Island. Previous leadership and committee roles with the JLRI include Community Outreach Co-Chair, Provisional Training, Community Service and Placement/Nominating. She also serves the League as a transfer mentor and participates on ad-hoc committees as needed. Erin was an active member of the Junior League of Fort Myers from 2010-2014 where she was involved with the cookbook and Taste of the Town committees. Erin is the proud recipient of the 2016 JLRI President's Award and 2017 JLRI Community Service Award.

Professionally, Erin is the owner of The EMH Project – a full service association management company that specializes in membership development and recruitment for trade associations. Local clients include the Greater Providence and Northern Rhode Island Board of REALTORS®. Her vision board is consistently filled with new passion projects ranging from developing online training modules to professional speaking engagements. Follow along with Erin's adventures on Twitter and Instagram at @erinmherzog

Outside of Junior League, Erin is a proud supporter of her adopted city of Providence. She volunteers regularly with the Ronald McDonald House and Rhode Island Blood Center and is an active member of the PVD Lady Project and the American Society of Association Executives. She previously served as an Advisory Board Member and Entrepreneurial Spirit Program Facilitator for Dress for Success Southwest Florida.

Originally from Lake Parsippany, New Jersey, Erin moved to Rhode Island in 2006 and again in 2014 after living in Philadelphia, Washington D.C. and Naples, Florida. She received her B.S. in Hospitality Management from Widener University and currently resides on the East Side of Providence with her spoiled puggle Guinness.